Dear Hiring Manager,

I am pleased to apply for your advertised job opportunity entitled “Laboratory assistant” that I found out about through Laboratory Assistant - Career Portal \(dayforcehcm.com\) link. I am passionate to work in a laboratory assistant position as it allows me to practice my knowledge and learn more about environmental issues.

As illustrated in my resume, I have worked in different laboratory environments during my education, and I have a noticeable hands-on experience in working with laboratory tools. I am very precise in checking the quality of samples and providing standard lab reports. I am also familiar with the calibration processes of some laboratory tools.

As a research assistant at the University of Tabriz (Iran), one of my responsibilities was preparing the samples used as a radiation shield. In this position, I learned about the importance of standards and instructions related to sample preparation. I also had the opportunity to analyze the different materials used in the shield using analyzing tools.

I like working in fast-paced environments, and I believe it helps me to analyze the different issues in the minimum amount of time. I understand the conditions of the laboratories and their essential requirements, including standing for a long time and lifting and carrying heavy materials.

I am an analytical thinker who understands confidentiality in the work environment, and I have two years of experience in communicating with different clients. I am an adaptable person who follows instructions and pays attention to details.

Although I have provided the information about my experiences and skills in my resume, I am available in person or remotely to talk more about my background. Please feel free to contact me through:
